Gas Smell Brings Fear of a New Blast at Reno

By JIM THOMAS

RENO, Nev. (AP)—The block-square Masonic Temple and nearby business buildings were hastily evacuated today as a strong smell of gas led to fears that a new explosion might follow yesterday's disastrous propane gas blast in downtown Reno.

Yesterday's triple explosion killed two persons, injured 41 and destroyed five business buildings. Today National Guardsmen and police began ordering people out of the area again as the gas odor became intense.

Besides the Masonic Temple, a block from yesterday's disaster, a big Woolworth store, the small Mapes building and the Medical Hospital building were ordered evacuated.

The Mapes Hotel and other nearby structures which were cleared out for several hours yesterday were not affected immediately by the new precautions.

All street traffic and pedestrians were herded from the vicinity.

The new fear came as officials still were checking into the effects of the Tuesday afternoon explosion.

The Washoe County sheriff's office said that five previously unaccounted-for persons had been found.

Damage along Sierra Street was estimated in excess of two million dollars.

Because of the great amounts of rubble to be cleared away and dangerous walls and overhanging beams which needed to be knocked down, disaster crews could

The president, Mrs. Max Kitchen, introduced the guest speaker, R. H. Conner Sr. M. T., who gave a review on "The RH Factor and Erythroblastosis Foetalis in the Newborn."

After a short business session, Mrs. George Wright told of the activities of the Future Nurses Club.

No Relief in Present U. S. Tax Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee today voted to extend business taxes for another year at their present 30-billion-dollar annual level.

The tax-writing group acted only minutes after hearing Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey said it would be "inexpedient" to let the government slip back into deficit financing by not extending the present levies.

Chairman Cooper (D-Tenn.) said the committee action was "very quick and swift" on a voice vote without a roll call. "I didn't hear but one vote" against it, he said.

The committee decision paves the way for expected House passage of the bill within the next couple of weeks.

Corporation income is now taxed at 52 per cent under rates put into effect during the Korean War and continued since. Without a continuation of the present law, the rate would drop to 47 per cent in April.

The bill would also continue at present levels the excise, or sales, tax rates on whiskey, tobacco and automobiles.

Humphrey said today's tax levies are "too high" and "will in the long run seriously hamper our economic growth," but he did not hold out the prospect of any immediate reduction.

Humphrey set out his views in testimony before the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Stock Market Headed Lower

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market headed lower in moderate trading early this afternoon. Pivotal issues declined from fractions to around 2 points.

After yesterday's break, the sharpest in four months, analysts felt the market was as a critical point where it could either rebound or seek a considerably lower rallying point.

The declining phase today followed a statement by President Eisenhower that the government will have to move in with some form of inflation controls if business and labor fail to deal with the problem adequately on a voluntary basis.

Jaycees Plan Assistance to Libraries

Operation Library, a program of aid and assistance to libraries according to their particular needs, was begun when M. W. Highshoe, a retired barber turned librarian, approached the West Memphis Jaycees and asked for their help in improving the library facilities of that city.

Cecil Edmonds, at that time chairman of the West Memphis Jaycees Education Committee, worked and planned with Mr. Highshoe and the Arkansas Library Commission, and Operation Library was launched.

Other Jaycee Clubs in Arkansas adopted Operation Library and went to work in their communities; and with hearty approval of the Arkansas Library Commission and the Arkansas Library Association, soon gained such recognition of their labors that the Jaycees made Operation Library a State Jaycees Project, with Cecil Edmonds State Chairman.

Continued success in the efforts of Arkansas Jaycees to promote better library service through public programs, increasing, improving, and expanding available facilities, and endorsing tax programs where needed caused John Richards, immediate past

One Killed, 19 Hurt in School Bus Accident

FOREST CITY (AP)—One person was killed, five were hurt critically and 19 others were hospitalized today after a school bus and a tractor-trailer truck collided on a highway near here.

Dead is Rufus Duff, 45-year-old Negro of the Round Pond community near here. He was driving the school bus.

He died at a Forrest City hospital about three hours after the collision on U. S. Highway 70 about three miles east of here.

State Police at this east Arkansas town said the five critically injured persons — four Negro children on the bus and the driver of the truck — were not expected to live.

The names of the children were not available immediately.

State Police St. Clarence Montgomery said Raymond Earl Newell, 20, of Tahamis, Ill., driver of the truck, crossed about three feet over the center line when his brakes failed to grab as he approached a bridge set up around highway workmen.

The two vehicles collided head-on. Ambulances took the injured to hospitals here and at nearby West Memphis, Ark.

State Police said Newell was on route from Opheussus, La., where his truck was loaded with potatoes, to Peoria, Ill.

The school bus, carrying 37 high school children between the ages of 13 and 20, was en route to a Forrest City Negro school.

An official at Crawley Cogburn Clinic here said "about a dozen" children were hospitalized with injuries. Roy Hospital said it had three and Forrest City Hospital said it had "12 or 13."

The accident occurred on U. S. Highway 70 about three miles east of here.

Home demonstration agents, began their work in Arkansas about 1912. In 1940 they reported 200 hand-operated looms were being used in the state.

House Slams Through 3% Sales Tax; Warns of Highway Fund Loss

Diversion to Cities, Counties Would Be Costly

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Arkansas could lose to 100,000,000 in federal matching funds if the Legislature should approve a bill diverting highway money to city streets, highway director said today.

Eldridge based his figure on a projected estimate of income and outgo of the Highway Department, after an audit of the Legislative Auditing committee was completed late yesterday.

Eldridge used the figure of $100,000,000 to show how grave the situation could be if the cities are given more state highway funds than they are now receiving.

However, he added that this would only be on the 8-to-1 ratio, which is presently set up for funds which are to be used in the federal road building program in Arkansas.

Conservative estimate would be around $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 loss, because part of that money would be used in secondary and urban roads, where the ratio of federal-state matching money is on a 50-50 basis, Eldridge said.

The legislative audit reported that as of Dec. 31, 1956, the state Highway Department showed a deficit of $5,011,000 net working capital.

However, explained that all work is let on anticipated revenue when the contracted projects were completed.

Eldridge said the answer to the "big question" over more money for cities, counties and the highway department could be ironed out if the legislature worked out an equitable distribution system.

"The money is now distributed on a haphazard basis with no basis except what pressure the three beneficiaries can bring," he said.

Eldridge suggested an equitable distribution of the money would be on the amount of traffic a road receives.

"If such a basis were used, the cities are receiving more already than they are entitled to. But that is not saying they do not need more money," he said.

Kiwans Hear About Care of Teeth

Proper use of the tooth brush immediately after eating, periodic visits to your dentist and proper diet are three of the best methods of preventing tooth decay, Dr. S. W. Strong told the Hope Kiwanis Club Tuesday in a speech on National Dental Week for Children.

A national survey shows half the population over 40 years of age need artificial teeth, Dr. Strong pointed out in urging preventive methods of tooth decay in contrast to corrective methods after damage has been done.

Governor Now Turns to Hiking Assessments

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—All major administration legislation has been completed, Gov. Orval Faubus said today, but there may be further proposals relating to the assessment and industrial development programs.

Faubus said a "suggestion" had been made for a "graduated penalty" in the program to bring all tax assessments up to 20 per cent.

Under present law, any county which has not brought its assessments up to 20 per cent by 1958 would receive less than its normal amount of state turnback funds.

Sen. Fred Stafford of Marked Tree has introduced a bill that would delay this penalty until 1959.

Commenting on Stafford's bill, the governor said he may back a bill to set the penalty for counties which had not brought assessments up to 14 per cent by next year, and then add 1 per cent to the standard each year until it reaches 20 per cent.

This plan would give counties five or six years to equalize all tax assessments at 20 per cent of market value.

Faubus also said a measure is being drafted which would set up a "central bank" for the Arkansas Industrial development Commission. He said that as much as 5 million dollars may be placed in this bank for "investing" in new industry.

He said this money would not be taken from general revenues but would come from the state's "ordinary investment fund."

In answer to questions the governor repeated the assertion that his bill to raise the sales tax from 2 to 3 cents per dollar — which has been passed by both

Arkansans to Dig Up $22 Million Yearly

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas House yesterday followed the lead of the Senate and gave Gov. Orval Faubus all he asked for in new taxes—an estimated 22 million dollars a year increase in sales, income and severance levies.

Opponents of an increase from 2 to 3 per cent in the sales tax fought to the end. But, even when fighting, they gave every indication they knew their cause was lost.

When the votes were counted, the administration had an overwhelming majority for the bill itself and a wide margin for the emergency clause, which makes the measure effective immediately, or signing by the governor.

After that, the income and severance increases were adopted without even a token struggle, and the House finished up the day's measure designating where the expected new revenue was to go.

Faubus, subject of a bitter attack by a "freeman" representative during House debate, too, the news of his victory calmly.

But he called approval of his tax plan "the most progressive and constructive step any Legislature has taken in the past 2 years."

Supporters were quick to declare that Faubus was the first major tax program pushed through the Legislature since that of the late Gov. J. M. Fulton during the depression era more than 20 years ago.

Snowslide in Idaho Leaves One Man Dead

WARDNER, Idaho — A series of snow slides swept down a canyon onto this mining community yesterday, smashing homes like cardboard boxes. One man was killed and three others injured.

A mother and her young daughter were buried alive for about an hour and a half. Another woman was thrown through the broken roof of the adjoining house and landed alive, but critically hurt, in the street.

Many of the 1,000 residents, fearing new slides, evacuated their homes on the steep slopes on both sides of the main street.

The first slide struck before dawn. It killed a miner, Clarence Weaver, 56, splintered his home and tossed his wife 200 feet through the roof next door.

Tons of snow and ice again came crashing down at 10 a. m., smashing into houses half a mile farther down the canyon. Mrs. Betty Sawyer, 24, and her daughter Gloria, 3, were trapped in the kitchen of their home.

A hundred men worked frantically to free them from the snow. After 90 minutes, Mrs. Sawyer was found under the protective cover of the back porch which had been knocked atop her. The child was found nearby, still sitting in her smashed high chair. Neither was believed seriously hurt.

A third slide struck in the afternoon, burying one man briefly up to his neck in snow.

Some three feet of powdery snow was topped by a layer of heavy wet snow. When the temperature reached about 30 degrees, the white mass began to move.

Need Few Days to Ready Tax

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Even though an increase in the state sales tax may go into effect immediately on Gov. Orval Faubus' signature, formalities and administrative procedure would prevent immediate collection.

State Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney said about 40,000 Arkansas retailers would have to be notified formally of the change. "We would need a few days," he said.

The governor's bill to increase the sales tax from 2 to 3 percent, already successful in the Senate, was scheduled for consideration in the House today.

Rep. Carl Purnell of Jefferson County told the House that "a certain gubernatorial candidate for re-election" said in a speech at Pine Bluff last summer that he was proud that taxes had not been increased.

"After his election, he says that he's been working on a tax program for 18 months," Purnell declared.

Purnell said he did not think "we should exempt the tax for chickens and put it on groceries for kids," — a reference to Faubus' part in passage of a 1955 act exempting poultry and livestock from the sales tax.

The Jefferson representative termed "the dirtiest political stunt I ever saw" a recent Faubus hint that he might veto salary increases for judges if a tax program was not adopted.

Other critics of the sales tax increase were milder. The y declared the tax should not be increased until present exemptions were removed and other sources — with particular reference to the severance tax for removal of natural resources — forced to yield more.

Rep. Jack Qates of Franklin, closing for his opposition, said the people whom the increased tax would hit hardest "are being penalized for being poor."

Rep. Charles B. Roskopf of Phillips, one of several speakers for the bill, said no argument had been made against the bill that the new revenue was not needed.

Roskopf declared that the new money would be a help to Arkansas in its effort to attract industry to the state.

"A vote for this bill is a vote for the progress of Arkansas," Roskopf told his colleagues.

Mainly, proponents of the measure, apparently confident of victory from the start, contended themselves with stressing the need for added money to pay for public education, welfare, the state hospital for Nervous Diseases and the like — for which the increased revenue has been designated.

Closing for the bill, Rep. Eugene C. Fleeman of Mississippi said, "We are here on our honor to do what we think is right. It is not right to deprive some working man's child of the education he is entitled to."

Vote for the sales tax bill was 71-27. The emergency clause, needing 67 favorable votes, was approved 77-21.

Faubus has said the increased sales tax would yield about 10 million dollars a year.

The income tax bill was designed to not add estimated 5 millions through lowering of personal exemptions; the severance tax, 1 million or more through increases on fees for removing gas, oil, bauxite, coal and other natural resources.

All the tax measures got emergency clauses and clingers — The later making House reconsideration impossible. The bills passed the Senate a week ago.

Before the House got down to the sales tax bill itself, representatives rejected a half dozen proposed amendments — including one to fix an expiration date of June 30, 1959, on the increase, another to remove the poultry and livestock feed exemption and a third to eliminate the emergency clause.

Faubus said the increased tax might not be collected until March 1. However, Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney said it would be possible to start collections within a week after Faubus signs the measure.

In the Senate yesterday Sen. Lee Bearden of Leachville and Ellis Fagan of Little Rock sparred over another angle of Faubus' program: a bill to increase driver license fees in order to provide extra state police to patrol the highways and set up a bureau to administer driver licenses.

The bill passed the House 85-8 and was expected to encounter little difficulty in the upper chamber. However, Fagan, who also had opposed the governor's major tax bills, requested a delay in order to gather more information about the measure and to question State Police Director Herman Lindsey about the proposed budget for the department.

Fagan and several other senators demanded further assurances that the money would be spent as outlined by Bearden, and a motion to delay passed by voice vote.

Lindsey was scheduled to appear before the Senate today to answer senators' questions.

Fagan said he was not a member of either the "Faubus" or "anti-Faubus" factions. However, he said he had some doubts about raising the license fee 100 per cent and said the money might be provided by approaching general revenues funds or by raising the fee only 50 per cent.

Bearden said some salary increases were provided in the bill but insisted the main items were the addition of 87 men to patrol highways and the establishment of a driver testing bureau.

"All that goes on here is not in the open," Bearden declared. "Certain senators want to provide an assistant state police director and install Carl Miller in that position."

Miller is a state police officer. Fagan asked if the Leachville senator were "insinuating" that he was aiding in such a movement, and Sen. Morrell Cathright of Pine Bluff said, "I resent implications of that type."

Another House measure, which would abolish the present 2 percent discount allowed merchants for prompt payment, was defeated by a unanimous vote after Fagan delivered a strong speech against it.

A senator who is opposed to a bill introduced in the House by a representative from his district usually ignores the measure, but Fagan said he wanted to dispose of the sales tax discount repeal bill, which was introduced by Sen. Joel Y. Ledbetter of Little Rock. Fagan said it was the first time in his memory that a House bill had been defeated in the Senate by a unanimous vote.

New bills included a measure to re-establish the Arkansas Motor Vehicle Commission, which was set up by the 1955 Legislature but declared unconstitutional a short time later by Arkansas Supreme Court.

Another bill would rotate the chairmanship of the state Public Service Commission. The governor would retain authority to appoint all three commission members, but would lose the right to choose the chairman.

Gov. Nathan Gordon ruled that a bill which would require all races in which there are only two candidates be decided at the first instead of the second primary be sent to the House.

The measure received a 20-12 vote Monday, but a question was raised as to whether it altered an initiated act. If so, it would have required a two-thirds majority.

U.S. Communist Party Bewildered

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Communist party gives the appearance of a bewildered and split outfit as it gets ready for its national convention in New York Saturday.

Some Washington sources are inclined to take seriously what the party's internal splits, maybe so. But until there's more solid evidence of their early withdrawal the party says it does in New York can be taken with a grain of salt.

It can be said on the best authority that the American party was recently told by Moscow to cut out its yapping, close ranks and get down to business.

The direction the party actually seems to be taking is in line with what Russian Communist party boss Khrushchev suggested last February to Communist parties around the world: a change in tactics but not in purpose.

In his speech denouncing Stalin he recommended that Communist parties who find themselves at this time unable to take over by force should try to take over peacefully by such methods as these:

Infiltrating other parties and unions, pulling up united fronts, acting like independent national parties (to take some of the curse of Russia off them, and make them less obvious and objectionable to their own nationals). He even suggested that Communists criticize one another.

There are, Khrushchev said, various roads to socialism. In spite of the soundness they're now making about being a national party, the American group echoed Khrushchev's very words when its 22-man Central Committee drew up a new constitution, which will be submitted to the convention and says in part:

"There are various roads to socialism and the working people of our nation will find their own road."

As a result of Khrushchev's speech, revelations and recommendations there has been a three-way dispute in the American party more or less publicly aired.

1. William Z. Foster, the 70-year-old chairman of the party, is an old Stalinist. He doesn't want any drastic changes in the party. He wants tight discipline, a minimum of criticism and devotion to the Russian line.

2. Eugene Dennis, party secretary and considered one of the brains of the American party, has taken a cautious middle-of-the-road approach but is understood to have swung over to Foster now.

3. A third group — particularly the editors of the party's newspaper, The Daily Worker — has been more critical of Russia than Russia likes although criticism was suggested by Moscow in the first place.

This group talks of the need for American communism to act more independently. In this group are chief paper's editor in chief John G. Galt; its managing editor Alan Max; and its foreign editor Joseph Clark.

Before the party was stunned by Khrushchev's switch of last February, it had already suffered terrible damage.

Under government prosecution and investigation party membership had dropped from perhaps 75,000 to 25,000; of the top leaders, 108 had been tried and jailed for conspiracy to overthrow the government; more than a score of Communists had been jailed for perjury or other mistatements.

And worse as the party publicly admitted last spring and summer on organized labor; that it had committed enough mistakes to party.

It admitted that it had misunderstood American life so badly it had been swept out of the mainstream; that it was alienated from organized labor; that it had misjudged the desires of American Negroes; and that it was completely wrong in thinking the American economy would collapse, as Russian Marxists had said it would.

The most pathetic self-revelation of the American Communist party is this: It needed a kick in the pants from Khrushchev to make it think maybe it could do better with a change in tactics.

president of the American Library Association, to state.

The Arkansas Jaycees have laid the best ground work anywhere in the United States for citizen activity in library progress. The American Library Association gave complete endorsement in July 1956 when Operation Library was accepted by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce as a National Project, with Cecil Edmonds as National Chairman.

Just last week, at the Arkansas Jaycee State Board meeting in Little Rock, Mr. Edmonds received the Distinguished Service Award of 1956 in acknowledgment of his efforts in this tremendous public service.

Operation Library, the Hope Jaycees, is now working with the Hempstead County Library in a publicity program, and in bringing to the club's attention the needs of our county library.

The Hope Jaycees are preparing a sign of brick and wrought iron for the library, and the sign will be erected for the Jaycee sponsored Open House which will be held February 14 from 6 to 9 p. m. Everyone in Hempstead County is especially invited to visit the library during the Open House to view the very good facilities available to residents of this county.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), chairman of a special Senate committee investigating alleged racketeering in labor unions and industry, told a reporter he believes Beck could give testimony "very pertinent" to this inquiry and added:

"Before these investigations are through Mr. Beck will appear before us—unless he stays out of the jurisdiction of the United States."

The committee announced it plans to start big-scale public hearings within two weeks in its search for evidence of underworld influence in some unions, corrupt deals between some labor union officials and employers, and misuse of labor union funds by officials.

The committee yesterday hired Robert F. Kennedy as its counsel. He is on leave of absence from a similar post on the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, which McClellan also heads.

A counsel to the permanent subcommittee, Kennedy had testified at a public hearing he had evidence that teamsters union funds were used to pay "personal bills" for Beck and some other union officials.

Area rug forms the focal point of interest in this room setting. Its placement defines the corner arrangement of sofas and its shades of ocean blue and turquoise are repeated in the blue of the linen upholstery. Pillows are of a deeper blue. And the rug's basket-weave design complements the herringbone pattern of the polished wood floor.

Hidden assets of this dining group, a contemporary version of an Italian provincial design, add to its usefulness. Banded walnut table has aluminum foil laminated under its top, and a synthetic resin finish. These help protect against burns and ordinary stains. Breakfront's glass panels are held by tiny catches which permit panes to be removed for cleaning.

File for finery features shelves or hanger-rod pull-outs on casters. Made of walnut, units can be arranged to fit the space available.

Gas Smell Brings

not search the wreckage until today.

But for a clothing store employee's quick reaction when he smelled gas, said Fire Chief Karl Evans, the death toll "could have been a hundred."

Evans and other officials still sought the cause and place of the leak which freed the propane-air gas into at least three buildings in which it exploded. The gas is heavier than air and tends to settle to the lowest possible point when it escapes. There may have been three such pockets.

The first of the series of blasts occurred at 1:30 p. m., short minutes after an employee in the Paterson men's clothing store reported smelling gas in the basement.

A crew of trouble shooters from the Sierra Pacific Power Co., and a Fire Department rescue squad were rushed to the scene. They evacuated nearly every one from the five buildings before the fires started.

Major credit was given to Orville Owen, power company trouble shooter who sensed the danger. He warned all in the Paterson store, then rushed along the street warning people to "get out."

The firemen arrived as the first made several trips to Hollywood to see her.

They plan a honeymoon in Europe, after which they will reside in Cuernavaca, Mexico, friends said.

Miss Oberon's previous marriages, to producer Sir Alexander Korda and cameraman Lucien K. Ballard, ended in divorce.

DOROTHY DIX

She's Too High-Handed With Generous Husband

Dear Dorothy Dix: Two years ago I married a woman who was buying a home. We are middle-aged. I assumed the mortgage and interest payments, although she refused to put my name on the deed.

Now she has refused to speak to me for five weeks. She wanted a particular piece of furniture, and what with the house payments and current bills, I couldn't afford it. I have never refused her anything I could buy, have never gone with anyone else, don't drink or gamble. She knows where my money goes, but takes this unreasonable attitude anyway. I'm disgusted enough to leave, but she wouldn't be able to carry the house alone.

BAILEY
Dear Bailey: Some women just don't know when they're well off. Turning over all your money to a wife who doesn't speak to you is just too much. I think you've spoiled her. A temporary separation from you and the handy purse may jolt her back to appreciation of the good things she has.

A middle-aged woman who latches on to a loving, generous husband has hidden uncovered a jewel. Only a very selfish, inconsiderate female would fail to recognize the fact. Surely she can see the plight of other lonely oldsters: a hint to the effect that her conduct may lead to loneliness and insecurity again may change her attitude.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I've been going with a boy — not steady—

WILL
Dear Will: It's the wife's right to know about the new development, and either you or the husband should tell her. Why can't he send his own message? Afraid he might be turned down? That's a chance he should take.

CORINNE
Dear Corinne: Right as rain. Your daughter would never be happy (and apparently she's the deciding factor). Your husband would realize you didn't love him and had married him for the girl's sake and, naturally, he would be resentful. Don't do it.

It Always Happens to Andy Griffith

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everything happens to Andy Griffith. He's here on his first trip to sunny California, just in time for the snow. Most of the time it's pleasant here on his first trip to sunny California, that happen to Andy, they've been happening with such frequency in the past few years that even he admits "it's remarkable."

Right now he is starring in "No Time for Sergeants." How he managed to get this far might be a good subject for one of the monologues he does so well.

Andy might still be a school teacher. He was a Mount Airy, N. C., boy who was graduated from the University of North Carolina and started teaching music in Goldsboro. Together with his wife Barbara, he entertained folks with comedy monologues. Such as a Dixie deacon explaining "What it was—was football."

The monologues were a hit and Andy started doing them professionally. A Capitol Records executive heard a recording of his and suggested a national release. That catapulted Andy into prominence. "I'd still be doing monologues if I hadn't gone to see Mac Hyman's book and his agent told me they were going to do a TV show on it. He suggested I look into it."

So he went to the Theater Guild, which was producing the show. His sole dramatic experience had been playing Sir Walter Raleigh in "The Lost Colony" in Mantoloking, N. C.

The casting agent wasn't impressed by Andy's reading of the script. "I'm a lousy reader." But then Andy started explaining about his monologues and did one about "Romeo and Juliet." The office was in hysterics and Andy got the role.

The TV show led to the play, which made him a star. He was in it a year, dropping out to star for Ella Kazan in "A Face in the Crowd."

Andy owes a couple of pictures to both Kazan and Warners. But before he does anything else, he's heading to his new home on Roanoke Island in North Carolina. "To tell you the truth, the thing I like to do best is just plain loaf," he declared.

But he won't have much time for loafing when his two pictures come out.

BREATH OF LIFE—A new type of artificial respiration, designed for immediate treatment of gas casualties and resuscitation of drowning, electric shock or suffocation victims is demonstrated by medical aid men at the Army Chemical Center in Edgewood, Md. The device consists of a modified Army gas mask, an anesthetic mask, two hoses and a purification canister. As the rescuer inhales, air is drawn into the purification canister (on victim's chest), purified and trapped in the hose leading to the anesthetic mask placed over the victim's face. When the rescuer exhales, the purified air is forced into the victim's lungs.

ENJOYING NEW FREEDOM—Mrs. Nancy Conant, a polio victim, smiles happily as she demonstrates a new portable power unit for respirators at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York. It makes it possible for respirator patients to go to the theater, go shopping in stores and engage in many other hitherto impossible activities. The new unit, 24 inches long, 16 inches wide and nine inches thick, weighs 55 pounds. It is carried underneath a wheelchair with a flexible hose connecting it to the patient's respirator.

SWEET AND SOUR—Thirteen-year-old Janice Colwill, a visitor from Australia, appears fascinated by the big lemon growing in the science classroom at the Lawrence, Kans., junior high school. The lemon has been growing for 10 months, is 14 inches in circumference and weighs 24 ounces.

THE STORY: The first heard of Texas cattle brings flourishing business to Pawnee City. Chad Morgan and Joe Jagger believe nothing can stop their success. Then a shot rings out.

IX
And then he left Helen Jagger and was running swiftly toward the tent saloon.

Pillsbury and a half-dozen men were standing in a small semicircle, looking down at the crumpled body of a Texas cowboy. One of the men, whom Morgan had never seen before, was holding a revolver in his hand. He was a lean, pasty-faced man in a Prince Albert, dark trousers and a gaudy vest.

Morgan's eyes went to him at once. "You killed this man?"

HCTA Meet

The HCTA met Wednesday night January 30, in the Harris Gym with the Nevada County NCTA as guest. The President G. S. Williams called the meeting to order.

The meeting was opened with song and prayer conducted by Jewel Jacques and Rev. B. W. Carter. Opening remarks and Rev. B. W. Carter. Opening and greetings by G. S. Williams, Pres.

Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted. The following Committee Reports: Finance P. L. Powell, Programs Mrs. E. M. Nelson, Hospitality Mrs. Estell Spearman.

Old And New Business Was Discussed
After the business session there was a Forum consisting of five persons. Subject: Building better communities. Panelist: Mrs. Maud unprepared. They let go of Thorne who managed to retain his feet, and turned on Chad Morgan.

"You're not hanging him," said Morgan evenly.

Dan Hastings, the Texas cattle drover, came into the saloon. At his heels were three more Texas men and Joe Jagger.

"Curly Meeker," he groaned. He looked around and picked out Thorne. "You're the man killed this boy?"

"He pulled a gun on me," snarled Thorne.

"He ain't gona kill nobody else," shouted one of the cowboys.

Joe Jagger nodded enthusiastically. "Mr. Hastings, I'm sorry about the boy. This is a new town and things are still pretty unsettled, but one thing we can have here is somebody getting around killing people. I say we make an example."

Morgan started to protest, but a sudden shout went up among the cowboys and his words were drowned out. And then it was too late. Hands grabbed at the gambler-killer. Fists smashed into his face. Guns came out and struck him. Screaming and babbling, he was dragged out of the saloon.

The gun in Chad Morgan's hand was useless. The press of men in the small space was to great. They were too angry, too violent to be stopped.

This was the day that the first cattle cars were loaded in Pawnee City.

It was also the day when the first man was killed in Pawnee City, lynching in Pawnee City.

Artie Puffpuff stood in the middle of the dusty street as shabby and dirty as ever. He had lived here, right on this very spot, that boots of men, by the hoofs of cattle and ironshod horses.

Owlshly he looked toward the huge hotel, straight ahead at the cattle pens beyond, where the bawling of cattle never ceased.

He turned slowly and surveyed the buildings on his left: a saloon, a restaurant, a photographer's shop, a general store, a barber shop, a hardware store, another saloon, a bank.

Bank had money and Artie Puffpuff had none.

Well, Artie Puffpuff had a gun. It was an old dragoon pistol that had seen much service. It had no trigger guard; it was big and cumbersome and kicked like old Ned, but it could still fire a very loud and very lethal charge of lead.

Puffpuff aimed the old horse pistol at the window of the bank. He pulled the trigger again. The bullet almost missed the window, but managed to score near the upper left corner of the rather large glass pane and to Puffpuff's ears came the pleasant crash and tinkle of glass.

Joe Jagger happened to be in the bank and he came gashing out, his Navy gun in his fist. He saw Puffpuff and strode toward him.

"What do you think you're doing, you drunken fool?" snapped Jagger.

"You cheated me," said Artie Puffpuff. "You robbed me and cheated me out of this here prairie."

"I bought this land from you," snapped Jagger.

"Yuh gimme a bottle of whiskey," whined Puffpuff.

"I paid you hard cash," Jagger said. "You had no real claim to it, anyway. I could have taken it without giving you anything."

"That's what you did. You took 'er away from me by force, that's what it ain't right. You got a town here now. And it's supposed to be mine."

"You fool," said Jagger, "go and get yourself a drink."

He took a silver dollar from his pocket. Artie Puffpuff's hand went out automatically, but Jagger threw the dollar into the dust of the street. Puffpuff went down to his knees and searched for the dollar and could not find it.

U.S. Chores in Bahamas Really a Fulltime Job

By HAL BOYLE

ANDROS, Bahamas (AP) — An American bureaucrat would shudder at the multiple duties of Stanley R. Darville, a political odd-jobs man in a warm climate.

Darville is one of 21 commissioners who handle government chores in some 2,000 Bahamas islands and cays ranging over 70,000 square miles of ocean.

He is one of three commissioners to Andros, largest of the islands, and you can't be around here long without running into the chubby, smiling, 43-year-old official.

British colonial governments act on the same principle as the U. S. Army: & Attained officer can handle any job. If Darville were a special hat for each of his jobs, he'd need at least 10 in his wardrobe.

When you land here, Darville as customs officer oversees the checking of your baggage. If you are caught smuggling in anything, eh will, as police chief, have you arrested; and then, as magistrate hear your case.

If you wreck your yacht on a reef, Darville has to open an inquiry within 24 hours as wreck investigator.

If your home should go up in flames, Darville will drop around Davis, Community Living; Mrs. U. P. Grishy, Ethics; Mrs. E. L. Wiley, Education; Mrs. P. L. Garmon, Citizenship; Mrs. A. B. McQuary, Recreation.

The information from this Forum was wholesome and informative. In the evaluation of this Forum it was pointed out that the school should be the center of any community and Parents and Teachers should cooperate together for a better community in which to live.

Says TV Has Too Much 'Pecksniffegy'

By CHARLES MERGER

NEW YORK (AP) — J. Perelman thinks there's too much "Pecksniffegy" standing between American television viewers and the so-called humor presented on the home screen. And Pecksniff, if you aren't a reader of Charles Dickens' "Martin Chuzzlewit," was a canting hypocrite.

"The public is a big innocent," said Perelman. "Between it and its television entertainment stand the experts, the crafty ones who not only think they know what the public wants, but even think they know what's good for it."

It seems doubtful that you could have lived so long and not know Perelman. But for late comedians, Dorothy Parker has defined him as the finest humorist in America.

His new book, "The Road to Millions," is probably his best and most hilarious. His latest movie is "Around the World in Eighty Days," a delightful experience you should not miss.

Not long ago his first TV work was on the home screen when Omnibus presented the superb account of burlesque, starring Bert

Where could they go? If one escaped into the wilderness he would either starve or be immediately turned in by natives.

Despite all his duties, Darville has a staff of only four men, including a clerk. He works around the clock many days, enjoys a seven day work week.

The pay scale would hardly tempt an American politician into migrating here. Commissioners make $25 to $50 a week, plus housing, plus an occasional legal fee.

"But I like the life," said Darville. "You can help many people with their problems and the feeling of satisfaction this gives you is a big part of your income."

Leah. "The Big Wheel." Perelman might do something else in the future for "Omnibus" for he found the experience pleasant. But he would not write, he says, for any other TV program.

"Comedy needs daring and imagination," he said. "It needs a cutting edge. But the edge is dulled when sponsors and agencies are so frightened of offending somebody. A good comedy writer must establish a point of view."

But he can't establish much of a viewpoint when the pecksniffs of television insist that he write for some mythical family.

"What is this family anyway that the crafty minds are afraid to expose to cerebral humor or social satire? I don't think it exists outside the imaginations of the crafty ones. Whistler's Mother is dead."

Perelman thinks it regrettable, for example, that television generally fears to satirize excessive commercialism. He has been satirizing in The New Yorker some of the advertising which appears in that magazine.

"Not once," he said, "have I received one word of criticism from a reader or advertiser of what I've written. In spite of me, The New Yorker has more advertising than ever."

Near Boca Raton, Fla. 30 miles from Miami Beach, there is a 350 acre reproduction of Africa. Zebra, giraffe, camels, ostriches and other desert and jungle wild life can be observed on this preserve.

SMU Defeats Baylor to Keep Pace

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Methodist sailed into the last half of the Southwest Conference basketball race last night by whipping one of its chief challengers, Baylor, and increasing its lead to a game and a half.

The Methodists used the free throw lane to ship Baylor 65-70. Deadly on their outside shooting in the first half against a tight Baylor zone defense, the Mustangs were hot as firecrackers in the last half to thwart a fired-up Baylor team that drew within a point of them in the final three minutes.

SMU made 35 free throws in 39 attempts as a crowd of 3,300 saw the great Jim Krebs at his finest. Playing on injured ankles, the giant Krebs scored 24 points to lead the Methodists, the nation's fourth ranking team, to their sixth conference victory in seven starts.

While SMU was remaining atop the race Texas was virtually fading from contention by being upset 69-87 by the cellar-dwelling Texas Aggies. The Aggies paced by George McHaffey, beat the Longhorns in an overtime. McHaffey lashed in a 15-foot field goal with only three seconds left. Regulation play had ended with the score tied 61-61.

It was Texas' fourth conference defeat and the first victory of the season for A&M. McHaffey pitched in 23 points, the same number scored by Ray Downs, Texas star.

To Measure the Heartbeat of Whale

LOS ANGELES (AP) President Eisenhower's heart specialist will attempt—by helicopter—to measure the heartbeats of giant grey whales.

Dr. Paul Dudley White heads an expedition which departed yesterday for remote Serammon Lagoon, off the Baja California coast, where the 60-foot whales beat their young.

Hovering 25 feet overhead, the helicopter crew will shoot a harpoon into the mammals. A line from the dart to a floating sear will relay the sound of the heartbeats to a shore station. There they will be relayed again to a yacht in the lagoon where the actual recording will be made by Dr. White.

He hopes to glean information helpful in treating human heart trouble.

tude towards the newly-formed players group.

"We showed the lists to Bell in Philadelphia last week and frankly cannot understand how there can be any doubt as to the backing we have from the players," the attorney said.

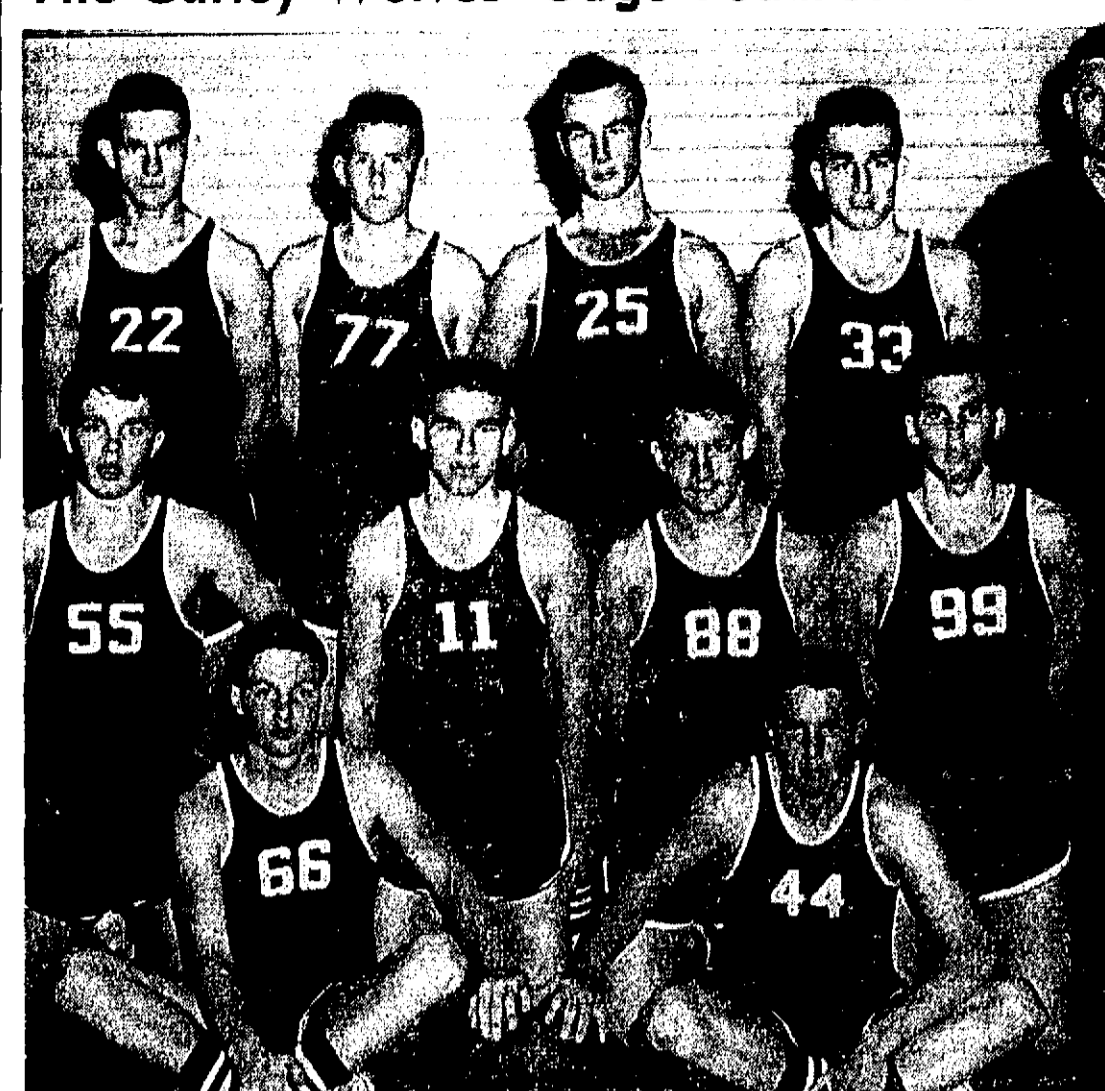

The owners flatly rejected the organization's annual meeting, stating, "we will not recognize anyone as a bargaining agent."

Miller at the association's two player representatives, Norm Van Brocklin of the Los Angeles Rams and Kyle Rote of the New York Giants, then countered with a threat that an industrial-type union might be forced on the owners.

"Our next step has not been decided," Miller said, "but the owners' rejection has served to solidify our group."

"Since Saturday I've had telephone calls from players all over the country and most are pretty mad. All say they'll back the association."

U. S. Reluctant to Sanction Israel

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States appeared reluctant today to consider applying sanctions to Israel even if that country does not withdraw its forces from all of Egypt.

Mention of the bare possibility of sanctions brought from Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) the quick comment that such action would be "immoral" and "insupportable" in the absence of similar moves against Russia.

This government is concentrating maximum pressure at the moment on getting Israel to comply unconditionally with United Nations demands for withdrawal.

Furthermore, Secretary of State Dulles told a news conference at which sanctions was discussed yesterday, there is "good ground to hope" that Israel will withdraw its forces. He did not spell out the basis for such hope.

The question of sanctions arose because the Israelis have so far resisted U. N. demands to pull back their troops from two sections of Egypt which they still occupy. They have called for guarantees of access to the Gulf of Aqaba for their shipping and assurances that the Gaza Strip would not again be used as a base for Egyptian forays against Israel.

American officials have been arguing with the Israelis that they should withdraw without insisting upon fulfillment of their conditions.

Dulles said under questioning that the United States "could only answer" the question of sanctions toward Israel in connection with some United Nations resolution on that subject. This country would not impose sanctions by itself, he said, but "if there was action by the United Nations calling for sanctions we would of course have to give them very serious consideration."
